

First annual Complex Continuing Care BBQ

Doctors, politicians and musicians join the party!

September 8, 2006

It's a different kind of barbecue with a guest list that includes palliative care patients, the Mayor of Kingston and local musicians who will play Irish music. PCCC's St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital Complex Continuing Care barbecue will bring together about 200 patients, staff, volunteers and family members for fun, prizes and live music. Complex Continuing Care patients are adults with multiple needs who require 24-hour nursing care.

The barbecue will feature a clown, face-painting, free hand massages courtesy of the Body Shop and giveaways donated by local businesses. There will also be music by Spencer Evans and Ron Hackett as well as "A Cup of Tea," a local band that includes Dr. Chris Frank, a geriatrician at St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital.

WHAT: 1st Annual Complex Continuing Care BBQ

WHO: Complex Continuing Care patients, staff, volunteers and family members, Mayor Harvey Rosen, Spencer Evans and Ron Hackett and local musicians "A Cup of Tea."

WHY: To give all those involved with the Complex Continuing Care Program an opportunity to have fun while saying thank-you to staff and volunteers. It's also an opportunity to introduce Maurio Ruffalo, PCCC's new administrative leader for the Complex Continuing Care Program.

WHERE: St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital, grounds off Union Street entrance

WHEN: September 13, 2006 from 11:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Providence Continuing Care Centre (PCCC) is the leading regional provider of non-acute health care in Southeastern Ontario and a major centre for teaching and research through our affiliation with Queen's University. PCCC provides care at four main sites: St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital, Mental Health Services and Providence Manor in Kingston; and St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in Brockville.

Media contact for more information:

Corinne Deshaw, Communications Officer
Tel: (613) 548-5567, ext. 5668; Cell 328-4339